Frontiers Int'l hosts first Christmas party

The Philadelphia club of Frontiers International hosted its first annual Christmas shopping tour for 25 disadvantaged youth on December 12, at the Caldor department store in South Philadelphia. Each youngster was given money to purchase gifts for their siblings, parents, friends and/or themselves. It was a heartwarming experience to observe them as they went through the aisles making their selections. After the two hour shopping spree, the group spent the next two hours at Chuck E. Cheese restaurant playing video games, enjoying amusement rides and eating Pizza along with Santa.

The young shoppers include youth from Women's Christian Alliance, New Direction and Northern Home for Children.

Chaperoning the group are four prominent members of Frontiers International, Inc.: Artis T. Ray, President of the Philadelphia Club, Dr. Norman Clark (Santa), Anthony Daniels, President of Berean Federal Savings Bank, and Dr. Floyd Baker.

Frontiers International, is a national, nonprofit, nonsectarian service organization. Its members, called "Yokefellows", include men and women from all segments of our communities; professional, business, religious, political, educational and lay leaders. They provide many hours of volunteer service through their local clubs. For those interested in additional information about Frontiers, please call (215) 549-4550.
